

You are building a microservices based architecture, particularly one that uses the Adapter Microservice pattern.

How do you avoid calling your back end service that your microservice adapts to too frequently?

Use a Results Cache

The position of all potential caches in this architecture is shown below.

